

These are loose thumbnail sketches that explore different compositions to convey the scale of dinosaurs.

Pencil and painted versions of an Oviraptor (above) and a Psittacosaurus (to the left).

A bad-tempered Tyrannosaurus rex mother probably ate anyone who tried stealing her eggs. She stood guard over her warm, smelly mound nest. Leftovers from her last meal rotted nearby. Insects swarmed the rotting meat and piles of dinosaur poop.

DINOSAURS!
The word makes us think of ferocious, blood-thirsty, KILLER GIANTS.
It also makes us think of TRAIN-LONG, SKYSCRAPER-TALL GARGANTUANS!

Development of two T-Rex spreads from sketches to final art.

Cover Concepts.

Cover Sketch

Development of the cover art.

